

We're an independent, student-run newsroom.

As an independent student newspaper and the paper of record for the city of Berkeley, the Daily Cal has been communicating important updates during this pandemic. Your support is essential to maintaining this coverage.

DONATE HERE

THE DAILY CALIFORNIAN
Tuesday, May 10, 2022

NEWS

 SUBSCRIBE
to our weekly newsletter

News Sports Arts Opinion Blogs Multimedia Weekender Featured

APPLY SPONSORSHIPS ABOUT

LEGALS ADVERTISE CLASSIFIEDS

CAMPUS CITY COUNTY UC STATE NATIONAL ASUC OBITUARIES RESEARCH & IDEAS ELECTIONS 2020 COVID-19 NOTES FROM THE FIELD

CITY

MONDAY, MAY 9, 2022

Jordan Court, affordable housing community for seniors, opens in North Berkeley

CAROLINE LOBEL/STAFF

Jordan Court celebrated its grand opening on May 5.

BY RILEY COOKE | STAFF

LAST UPDATED 20 HOURS AGO

Jordan Court, an affordable housing community of 34 studios for low-income and formerly houseless seniors in North Berkeley, celebrated its grand opening on Thursday.

All Souls Episcopal Parish, which owns the 1601 Oxford St. site,

FEATURED VIDEOS

Powered by [\[primis\]](#)

The Daily Californian

Follow Page 41K followers

3
Like

Twe

Buick's Gorgeous New Lineup Might Leave You Speechless

Luxury SUV Savings | Sponsored

RELATED POSTS

Read Next Story >

developed the units in collaboration with Satellite Affordable Housing Associates, or SAHA, according to a SAHA press release. Of the 34 studios, 12 are set aside for formerly houseless seniors. Jordan Court also offers community spaces, support services and apartments for church staff.

“We are very open and excited to build in North Berkeley since there are very few affordable housing opportunities there,” said Carrie Lutjens, senior project manager at SAHA. “We are pretty much all leased out.”

A study from the UC Berkeley Labor Center found that three out of 10 seniors in California cannot cover their basic needs, especially those who are older, unmarried or renting.

According to Phil Brochard, rector at All Souls Parish, he experienced “joy and gratitude” during Jordan Court’s grand opening, citing Berkeley Mayor Jesse Arreguin as a champion of the project. Work on Jordan Court began eight years ago, before the housing crisis reached a “fever pitch,” Brochard added.

He noted the project cost $25.5 million, with a majority of the funding coming from the federal government’s low-income tax credit program, which Brochard described as the “backbone” of affordable housing developments.

“For us, as a Christian congregation, we have a deeply held belief that we are in this together,” Brochard said. “We felt like one way to do that was to provide housing and support in a community that was vulnerable and unable to access that.”

Brochard also noted that developers of Jordan Court invoked California Senate Bill 35, which aims to ease the approval process for affordable housing projects.

In addition to streamlining the approval process, Alameda County also made the application process for Jordan Court efficient, according to Lutjens. She explained that applicants were patient with regard to the waitlist, despite not being able to move in until February due to construction issues.

“The idea is that folks age in place, so hopefully they can stay indefinitely,” Lutjens said. “There are supportive services by SAHA and others so folks have the support they need to age in place.”

While there is significant public support for the project now, Brochard said there was small, but vocal, opposition in the beginning.

However, a cultural shift that occurred in 2014 helped push Jordan Court along as the housing crisis worsened.

“We wanted to do our part as neighbors to weave even more tightly the fabric of our community,” Brochard said. “Parish, Jordan Court and the wider community are going to be stronger for it.”

Ashley Tsai contributed to this story.

Riley Cooke is a deputy news editor. Contact her at rcooke@dailycal.org, and follow her on Twitter at @rileycooke.

‘Exclusionary and racist’: History of housing, gentrification in Berkeley

‘Service based on love’: Religious group donates to Berkeley Food Pantry

Berkeley City Council authorizes funds to support affordable housing

CITY
 Affirmment to protect housing for seniors, opens in North Berkeley

CAMPUS
 ‘A pinnacle of women’s rights’: Potential Roe v. Wade reversal sparks concern

HOUSING 2022
 There’s always Craigslist

HOUSING 2022
 I’m on my way

CAMPUS
 Campus, students react to finals plans amid rise in
 COVID-19 cases

HOUSING 2022
 ‘Exclusionary and racist’:
 History of housing,
 gentrification in Berkeley

Buick’s Gorgeous New Lineup Might Leave You Speechless

Luxury SUV Savings | Sponsored

Read Next Story >